Chapter One

Introduction

1.1 Introduction:

A brand refers to an identity of a product or service, which is publicly distinguished from other products or services so that it can be easily communicated and usually marketed to the consumers.

Originally, the term "Brand" was used for referring to the mark that cattle ranchers "Branded" on their cattle, the idea of a brand has evolved to encompass much more than just a name or a symbol. Your brand, a vital part of your brand identity, is defined as a name or a type of product manufactured by a particular business. A brand identity is made up of what your brand says, what your values are, how you communicate your concepts, and the emotions you want your consumers to feel when they interact with your business. Essentially, your brand identity is the personality of your business and a promise to your consumers.

As Jeff Bezos says, "Branding is what people say about you when you're not in the room." (Kathryn Wheeler, 2015)

For example, when you hear the name Coca-Cola, you probably picture its well-known logo, but you also might think of the polar bear, the color red, its “Open Happiness” campaign, or the classic ribbon-like imagery featured on its pet bottle or cans. All of these aspects are what make up the Coca-Cola brand, not just the logo of the business.

So, it can say undoubtedly that Branding is a very important term in marketing. But it’s not an easy task to distinguish a brand from others. It’s a very tactical and long-term process. This report is all about developing and managing a consumer brand.

1.2 Context of the Study:

A strong brand is invaluable as the battle for customers intensifies day by day. It's important to spend time researching, defining, and building your brand. After all, your brand is the source of a promise to your consumer. It's the centerpiece of your marketing communications and an identity you do not want to be without. Lots of promotional campaigns are lunched to brand a product. More the campaigns are unique, quicker the establishment is possible in the market.

Food industry is a rapidly growing sector than others in Bangladesh. By employing a significant portion of the labor force in the country. Between 2004 and 2010, the food processing industry in Bangladesh grew at an average 7.7 percent per annum. According to Bangladesh Bureau of Statistics, in its 25006 Economic Census, there were approximately 246 medium-sized food processing industries employing 19 percent of the industrial manufacturing workforce in Bangladesh or 8 percent of the total manufacturing labor force. The food industry employs 2.45 percent of the country’s total labor force and its share in the GDP was 2.01 percent in 2010. There are also numerous small-scale factories and domestic units engaged in food processing throughout the country. According to some industry analysts, the food processing sector in Bangladesh is a 4.5 billion US Dollar industry. In 2010, Bangladesh exported over $700 million worth of processed food and beverages, over 60 percent of them were shrimp and fish products.

Akij Food & Beverage Limited (AFBL) is one of the major concerns of Akij Group which has many Consumer Brands of Food and Beverage items in the market. We know, Branding can be applied to the entire corporate identity as well as to individual product or service name. There are some regular branding practices in FMCG industries. To create a brand identity for a particular product a like Farm Fresh, the brand team of AFBL needs to do lots of things with the collaboration of R&D (Research and Development) team. It includes researching the audience, making value proposition, to know the competition in the market, deciding brand name, logo, symbol, color, theme, launching campaigns, advertisement and many more. They also need to know what to avoid and what to do, to monitor the brand in proactive way. For being involved with Farm Fresh, here among all the brands of AFBL I am going to discuss about it. Farm Fresh mainly contains all the dairy products of Akij Food & Beverage Limited (AFBL). In food industry dairy is one of the growing fields. It mainly refers healthy food items for the consumers. Dairy products have higher demand to the health-conscious people as well as whom like to cook various recipe, so, it has also demand in the restaurant industry. Among Dairy and Pran Dairy are holding the most of the market share in Bangladesh. Farm Fresh is in third position now. So, Farm Fresh is trying hard to go to the top through their innovation in branding. In this report I will try to present the whole branding activities to develop and manage the brand “Farm Fresh” of Akij Food & Beverage Limited (AFBL).

1.3 Objective of the study

❖ Broad Objective:

The main objective of the study is to know the branding practices of AFBL through which a brand is developed and managed.

❖ Specific Objective:

For being involved with Farm Fresh during my internship period, I am going to discuss about this particular brand through the report. Most importantly I am going to describe branding initiatives and activities of Farm Fresh at AFBL.

1.4 Methodology of the study

The study is exploratory and descriptive in nature. For Data collection it has employed both primary and secondary sources.

❖ Primary Sources:

One to one interview was conducted for gathering information from different people of brand department in different time.

- Interviews with the people related with Research and Development (R&D) Department.
- Communication with Media, trade and creative department of AFBL.
- Direct Observations of regular activity and cases.

Secondary Sources:

- Information collected from Company Websites.
- Information collected from Facebook profile of AFBL and Farm Fresh.
- Various publications in online.
- Brand related information from the Text book.
- Data from different official sources and records.

❖ Methods of Data Collection:

I focused my full study on the most preferred brand Farm Fresh of AFBL. I talked with different department's employees several times during my internship period. Among them one was manager, one assistant manager, two senior executives were from core brand department, and rest of them was from Digital Media, Trade and R&D department. I also visited market to generate vital information. Afterwards, all collected data have been summarized, organized and finally prepared for report purpose.

1.5 Limitation of the Study

Though I knew and had access to much information, but there are still some important things which I couldn't get hold of and they didn't prefer to disclose. Certain limitations while conducting the study are as follows:

- Inadequate information of related field
- Work pressure of executives restricted this report from being more detailed and analytical.
- Lack of integration among all departments.
- Time consuming as there was less information in web search and the tenure of the internship program was very short to observe everything.
- Competitors' information could not be gathered due to their privacy policy
- Confidentiality rule of the organization hindered the study.

Chapter Two

Literature Review

2.1 Literature review

The value realized by a firm from selling its products is determined to a large extent by the strategy that is used to bring the products to market (Chesbrough, 2003).

Organizations that launched flourishing products such as Apple and Microsoft have been credited with adopting the right product strategy for their products (Wall Street Journal, 2006).

Consequently it is imperative for firms to recognize the impact of the product strategies formulated a product strategy is the critical vision of the product and affirmed where the product will cease. When a product strategy is developed, it becomes easy for firm to determine the direction of the product efforts. The product strategy forms the basis for executing a product roadmap and consequently product releases. However company is able to concentrate more on a target market specifically and set feature. Bantel (1997) suggests that particular product/market strategies are effective at achieving particular performance goals to the exclusion of others.

The role of product strategy is to make an association between the company's product development and its business strategy (McGrath, Anthony, & Shapiro, 1996) and according to McGrath (2000) it guarantees that the firm and its products is engaged in the right markets from a strategic viewpoint. Product strategy is referred as the consequence of making important decisions in managing new product development (Krishnan and Ulrich, 2001; Mintzberg, Ahlstrand, and Lampel, 1998).

The product strategy process involved the process of decision making within a company.

Product is the first and most important element of the marketing mix. Product strategy calls for making coordinated decisions on product mixes, product lines, brands, and packaging and labeling. (Philip Kotlrt,2016)

A company can change the product component of its marketing mix by lengthening its product via line stretching (down -market, up market, or both) or line filling, by modernizing its products, by featuring certain products, and by pruning its products to eliminate the least profitable. (Kevin Lean Keller, 2016)

3.3 Industry Perspectives

- SWOT Analysis of AFBL

SWOT analysis is basically a scan of the internal & external environment which is an important part of strategic planning and decision making for an organization. The word ‘SWOT’ contains four factors- Strengths, Weaknesses, Opportunities, and Threats. Among these the internal factors are Strengths(S) & Weaknesses (W) and the external factors are Opportunities (O) & Threats (T).

Strengths and Opportunities represents positivity, in the other hand Weaknesses and Threats represents negativity.

The SWOT analysis provides important information which is very helpful to allocate the resources perfectly by considering capabilities to achieve the competitive environment.

The following diagram shows a SWOT analysis of AFBL.

❖ Competitor Analysis of AFBL:

Porter's Five Forces Analysis

Porter's Five Forces Model Analysis on AFBL
Criteria	High	Moderate	Low
Competitive Rivalry Between existing competitors	✓
Threat of New entrants			✓
Threat of Substitute Products	✓
Bargaining power of Suppliers		✓
Bargaining power of Buyers	✓

Reasons:

1. Competitive Rivalry Between Existing Competitors:

From previous discussion you know that there are some international giants as well as strong local competitors in the market so the competitive rivalry is very high.

2. Threat of New Entrants:

As there are already some international giants as well as strong local competitors in the market, the possibility of entering new competitors is very low.

3. Threat of Substitute Products:

In FMCG sector, already there are many substitute products of AFBL. But some competitors still didn't bring substitute products, so it's a high threat of arising more substitute products in the market.

4. Bargaining Power of SUPPLIERS:

As the existence of competitors are very high in the market, the Bargaining power of Suppliers should be very high, but AFBL manage to collect their raw materials by their own, for example they have their own mango pulp factory for making fruit drinks, in some cases when they import, they maintain a very strong relationship with the suppliers which makes task easier.

5. Bargaining power of Buyers:

The existence of many substitute products provides many options to the consumers. They can switch products for any reason. So, consumers have high bargaining power in their hand.

Chapter Five

Developing and Managing a Consumer Brand

5.1 Developing and Managing a Consumer Brand

Among all the eight brands of AFBL, one of the major brands of AFBL is Farm Fresh. It contains basically all dairy products such as Farm Fresh UHT milk, (Mango flavored, Chocolate flavored), Farm Fresh Pasteurized Milk, Farm Fresh Ghee, Farm Fresh Butter, Farm Fresh Powdered Milk, Farm Fresh Yoghurt (Sweetened, sour, low fat).

Initiation:

The brand entered the market in September in 2007

Ranking:

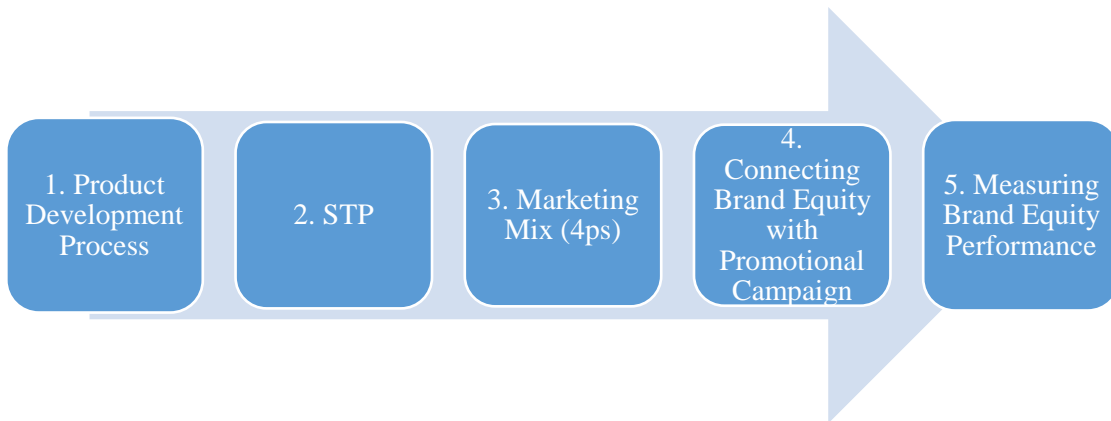

3rd (Among dairy brands)

Tagline: “Farm Fresh Khao Agiye Jao” (present)

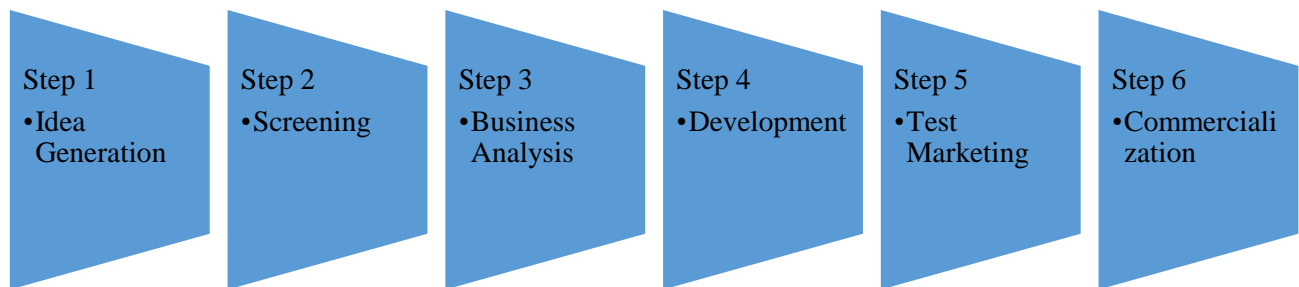

USP: Farm Fresh Collect the organic pure milk from the farmers and hand over its products to the consumers after processing with the best possible way.

- Both Brand and R&D department play a great role to develop and manage a consumer brand of a company. According to my observation and information, at AFBL their total sequential branding practices look like this-

1 Product development process: To develop a product, everything goes through 6 steps of process at AFBL.

Step 1: Idea Generation

The process begins with ideas of various sources. It included suggestions of dairy products from R&D specialist, consumers, sales force, suppliers, retailers, independent inventors etc. Here dairy products were just an idea for them.

Step 2: Screening

Here the best and potential ideas were chosen from various ideas. The potential products were selected first like pastoralized and UHT milk, ghee, yoghurt, butter etc. which can meet company objective.

Step 3: Business Analysis

Then overall business was analyzed to evaluate those products's potentiality in the market, growth rate, strengths, financial and technical requirements etc.

Step 4: Development

It included the conversion process, by which those selected products were developed. This was the visible form of the idea of dairy products. UHT milk, ghee, yoghurt, butter etc. achieved their physical existence.

Step 5: Test Marketing

The intension of this step is to gauge customer reaction. Here some of those dairy products were marketed silently to know how those products will perform in real life.

Step 6: Commercialization

The final stage is where the product was available for full scale marketing. Finally, all those products were ready to be marketed with promotional campaign.

1. AFBL's target is all about Bringing quality in life of customers. This is a never-ending commitment. It does not just happen. They make it happen through innovation, extending the product category, using high quality technology and environment friendly machineries.
2. Farm Fresh ensures the freshness and purity of their products through innovative operations and modern technologies like Tetra Pak Automation Services.
3. Besides pasteurized and UHT Milk Farm Fresh also focuses other dairy products like ghee, butter, yogurt etc. which has high demand in restaurant industry.
4. As most of the people of Bangladesh are price sensitiveness, Farm Fresh here serves them better in term of lower cost.
5. Besides Chocolate and Mango Milk Farm Fresh is going to bring more flavored UHT Milk like, Elachi Milk, Strawberry Milk, Coffee Milk etc.
6. By introducing specific SKU it's easy to capture the market.
7. To build Brand equity, Farm Fresh invests a lot in sales promotional activities like different discounts and combo offer for its customers.
8. Farm Fresh always keep active in digital media thorough the TTL campaign, where they offer many different digital contests, games, activities for greater engagement of customers.

6.2 Problem Identification from findings:

From the survey we come across that in spite of huge investment in Promotional campaign the brand equity of Farm Fresh is downward relative to Arong and Pran Dairy which is a great threat for the brand Farm Fresh. Following reason can be portrayed as an identification of the problem

1. Competitor's introducing different SKU's like Farm Fresh, which is a threat.
2. Farm Fresh's distribution channel is comparatively weak to make available it's all SKUs.
3. AFBL focuses more to its CSD (Carbonated Soft Drinks) products than dairy.
4. The service offering Aladdin for home delivery service of AFBL product is not well known to the customer.
5. International Giants like Nestle, Arla Foods, and New Zealand dairy still didn't bring any dairy products in the market. But if they enter here, it will be a big threat.
6. Research department covers only 1500 respondent every year which is quiet small sample size to know the customer as a whole.

Chapter Seven

Recommendations & Conclusion

7.1 Recommendations & Conclusion

Food and beverage industry are mostly fast-growing sectors in Bangladesh. As a result of intense competition companies now are recognizing the importance to improve their brand equity through different promotional campaign. For 12 years long Farm Fresh has been providing its customer a belief of pure and fresh source of dairy product. But as a whole, it has some drawbacks too. With the analysis of findings of this study and Following related recommendations, the equity Gap can be abated and make the customers buy.

1. Segmentations and Targeting should be done more specifically for all the SKUs of farm Fresh.
2. R&D dept. should focus more to the dairy products besides of CSD products.
3. Distribution channel should be strong to make available all the SKUs in the specific target market.
4. Farm Fresh should increase its signature campaigns like Farm ‘Fresh children’s day’.
5. For online delivery through Aladdin, All AFBL products including Farm Fresh give small percentage of discount per quantities to the customer. So, this delivery service should be highly promoted to the big buyers.
6. Farm Fresh can make many combo packs with its dairy products, which can create demand to the consumers.
7. FGD survey may work better for blind test of 3 competitive brands and rate them in different criteria like mouth feel, sugar amount, taste and flavor.
8. Close ended survey through Google form in Digital platform or dedicated brand promoter can contribute positively to create vital and meaningful information for R &D dept. Thus integrating “Voice of Mothers” Farm Fresh can capture their states and unstated needs or requirements in all business decisions.
